LUTHERAN CONFERENCE

Held at Marklesburg Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Juniata Conference of the Allegheny Lutheran Synod of Pennsylvania met in session at Marklesburg Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 28 to 30.

This conference comprises the Lutheran Churches of Huntingdon and Bedford Counties. A unique feature of this convention was the fact that every clergyman of the conference was in attendance during the sessions.

The Second Article of the Augsburg Confession was discussed by Dr. Zinn. The Layman's Missionary Movement by Dr. Wiesand; Child Religion or the place of the Child in the Church by Rev. Streamer, pastor of the church; How Can We Make the Church to be More Esteemed by the World, Rev. Bender of Schellsburg; Is Church Membership Necessary, Rev. J. J. Minemier, Bedford; What Constitutes a Christian, Rev. Mumford, Mt. Union; The Great Need of Better Living, R. V. Wagner, Huntingdon; Church Loyalty, Rev. George Trostle, Mann's Choice; The Church Member and the Sunday School, Rev. Frank P. Fisher of Petersburg. These were discussed by the clergymen to whom they were assigned and freely debated by others of the conference.

A few special matters received the attention of the conference: The death of Rev. Salem, who occupied the post of Secretary, when he died, was noted and his memory brought to notice, by a proper minute; resolutions expressing pleasure in entertainment, by pastor and congregation and community were passed, also calling upon all Lutheran laymen to support the President Judge of Bedford and Huntingdon for succession of himself as Judge, also for support of an Associate Judge who is opposed to the granting of any liquor license in the counties named, when the primaries come.

The ministers of the two counties will assemble at Bedford, as guests of the Lutheran Church, June 30 and July 1. It is intended to be a grand rally of Lutherans of Bedford County, to which all the Lutherans are invited. You will hear of it later.

The officers elected are, President, F. R. Wagner; Secretary, Rev. Mumford; Treasurer, Rev. Minemier.

William I. Eicholtz

The sad news of the death of William I. Eicholtz at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, April 24 was received in Bedford with deep sorrow.

Mr. Eicholtz was a man of strong constitution and exemplary habits, and when it was learned that he was suffering from an attack of appendicitis and an operation was necessary it was thought he would stand the ordeal without serious consequences; but owing to complications which developed the case became more problematical and death came very suddenly.

Mr. Eicholtz was a son of Hon. William G. Eicholtz and was born at Waterside June 15, 1854, where he spent his boyhood. When his father was elected Sheriff of this county in 1878, the family came to Bedford and during the term lived in the old jail. He took an interest in the affairs of the office which his father assumed and assisted him during his term, and served as Deputy Sheriff under Dr. Amerious Enfield and David Diehl. The position brought him in contact with the people of the county in a business way and, being affable, courteous and obliging in his intercourse with the public, he made many warm personal friends who would call to see him when in town to have a pleasant chat. Since retiring from public positions he looked after a farm near town and served in various responsible positions in which integrity and honesty were demanded and in these several positions performed his duty with that high degree of honor, business sagacity and integrity which characterized his whole career.

The deceased was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, of the local Masonic lodge and of Cove Lodge I. O. O. F.

The funeral services were conducted at his late residence, No. 121 East Penn Street, by his pastor, Rev. H. E. Wiesand, Sunday afternoon and were in charge of the Masonic fraternity, which were largely attended. Interment in the Bedford Cemetery.

The deceased is survived by the following brothers and sisters: George C. Eicholtz and Clinton, of Bedford; John E. Eicholtz of Washington, D. C.; Katherine Eicholtz, Mrs. H. A. Cook and Mrs. Sue Morehead, of Bedford.

Those who attended the funeral from a distance were his three nephews—Harry Eicholtz of Beaver Falls, William Mac Eicholtz of Uniontown and John E. Eicholtz, Jr., of Avalon, N. J.; also by Mrs. Nellie Klason of Williamsport and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Cook, of Philadelphia.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

The surviving members of the family desire to thank their friends and neighbors for their sympathy and assistance during the sickness and death of their brother.

Marriage Licenses

Owen Harper and Ocie B. Nelson, of Circleville, W. Va.
John Williams and Margaret Skipper, of Six Mile Run.
Clark S. Marshall of Leetonia, O., and Flossie Mellett of Everett.

- 15 Dorothy Replogle
- 16 Mildred Fink
- 17 Nellie Croyle

Yours respectfully,

Victor E. P. Barkman,
County Superintendent.

Class B. Any of the above who are now living in other states, but Pennsylvania provides these free transportation to Gettysburg and return only from the railroad station on the border of Pennsylvania which is nearest to their present residence; also

Citizens Discuss School Matters

The third session of a series of mass meetings was held in the school building at Langdondale Wednesday evening, April 23, at which the following business was transacted. At the last meeting held at Defiance there was a committee appointed to make inquiry and gather statistics that would be helpful in determining whether or not there would be any advantage in dividing the township, and to report at the next meeting. O. D. Whitte, acting as chairman, called for this report which was discussed pro and con at some length, after which it was moved by William McGahey, seconded by Samuel Winter, and carried that the question of a division of Broad Top Township be dropped and the committee be discharged.

In order to bring before the meeting some statistics that would be helpful in the discussion of other topics to be presented later, the financial reports of the district for the years 1911 and 1912 were called for and read. Some time was spent in discussing the advisability and advantages of consolidating the three schools in Sherman's Valley but there was no definite action taken in the matter.

Because of the over-crowded condition in the grades at Defiance and because of a demand that another year be added to the high school course and make it a first grade high school, it was thought advisable to bring the matter before this meeting so that the voters of the whole township might better understand the situation and thus give the Directors their support when it comes to providing means to carry on the work. Thomas Mosby, president of the Board of School Directors, made the opening address in which he referred to the fact that he and the "Sox" retary had each year to strain "Sox" consciences when making affidavits, the district reports relative to Coat Skin Gloves, provisions of the law and fare of the children who come to the district. He urged that matter be carefully considered that an expression of Board in the near future. A considerable discussion followed by Allen E. carried unanimously very purchase in this sale. If our bargains, bring back the money you paid us. In this, you have a chance to save, unless you don't care to save, then stay away, but do more than its Purchasing Duty, own eyes what Bargains we do give.

How Paint

The first cost of a good job of paint—Devote—is $50 (average size, of course). The first cost of a second or third or fourth rate job, $55 to $100.

The wear is likewise. The better you paint, of course, the longer it wears. And the more you pay for your job, the shorter it wears.

Devote is one of a dozen good paints. There are hundreds of bad ones. As likely as not, Devote is the only good one in this town.

Answer to Smith's Letter

After reading both of George M. Smith's letters published in The Gazette and Inquirer, we feel it our duty to make known a few facts which Mr. Smith has omitted.

First, he did not tell you, farmer and stockman, that on the 15th day of February the animal he speaks of was sold twice and on that day was examined by a veterinarian and condemned as being infected with glanders, and the party buying her returned her and told his reason. And again, she was put up and sold in defiance of the laws of Pennsylvania. Mr. Mock was the next bidder and when he asked why she was discharged from the nose, he was told she was just over distemper and he, under this pretense, bought her. After a closer investigation he was not satisfied and had her kept in a separate apartment from other animals from Saturday till Monday.

Now Mr. Mock paid $40 for her and $2 for her keep till Monday. He removed her to his farm at Lovely. Here he asked the State Live Stock Sanitary Board to investigate the case. They promptly sent Dr. Garmon, who pronounced her, in his opinion, to be infected with glanders, but he took tests of blood and sent them to the Board for further test, placing the animal under quarantine for two weeks. All the while Mr. Mock fed and attended this animal, endangered himself and animals and on the 26th day of March Dr. Garmon came and killed and burned her along with all the fixtures in Mr. Mock's stable.

Mr. Mock never worked this animal a minute and put himself to all this inconvenience, and then is charged with getting $10 more than he deserved. Figure this up and see. Besides, we owe Mr. Mock our thanks that he took the proper steps to ascertain whether she had glanders or chronic catarrh. Thanks to him that he did not pass it along as the other fellow did.

Now as to Dr. Hess, he runs a stock food establishment in Ashland, O. You can get his advice free. He will tell you of a few drugs to use along with his stock food. How can he tell whether your horse is afflicted with a bad cold, nasal gleet or chronic catarrh or glanders by your telling him the symptoms? You might as well have your family doctor in Jerusalem and write him the symptoms of your case and save bills. The fact that she has been in many stables only opens a wider swath for state inspection.

Mr. Stockman, when you wake up and find you have a case like this one, take the victim to the horse cemetery and not to a horse sale. I will herewith have printed for your special benefit a part of circular No. 19, information for guidance of veterinarians in handling of horses with glanders or farcy.

Veterinarians are required by law to report all cases of glanders, coming under their observation, to the State Livestock Sanitary Board. In order that uniform methods may be adopted for diagnosing this disease and disposing of affected animals the following plans are recommended:

"Animals showing well marked lesions of glanders or farcy may be appraised in accordance with Section 5 of the Act approved the 27th day of April, 1909. However, an animal must not be appraised and destroyed without instructions and authority from this board. Suspected animals should be carefully isolated until they can be either regularly quarantined, destroyed or proved to be free from glanders."

"Where a well marked case of glanders has been discovered all other exposed susceptible animals should be examined to see if any other open cases of glanders may exist. Arrangements should be made with the owner to have all exposed susceptible animals tested within mallein as soon as possible."

"Chronic glanders may exist for years in a susceptible animal, and this animal be a source of danger to other susceptible animals and yet show no physical symptoms of the disease. For this reason it is not always possible for a veterinarian to determine by a physical examination whether a susceptible animal is or is not afflicted with glanders."

"On account of the danger of infection no post-mortem need be made of animals destroyed for glanders or farcy when a positive diagnosis has been made, unless instructions are given to do so, but when agents of the State Livestock Sanitary Board have appraised and condemned animals for glanders they must see that they are destroyed and the carcasses properly buried (as provided by law), burned or treated in such a manner that infection may not be spread from such carcasses."

"The premises should be kept quarantined until cases of glanders have been removed and the premises thoroughly cleaned and disinfected and the agent employed by the state to condemn and destroy such cases should see that the place is properly cleaned and disinfected before the quarantine is removed. The cleansing and disinfecting is to be done at the expense of the owner. It is recommended that bichloride of mercury 1-1000 be used. Creolin, lysol, or pure carbolic acid in 5 per cent. solution will be satisfactory. Whenever antiseptic is used it should be applied freely and wherever possible the stable should be whitewashed after such disinfection. It is recommended that one pound of chloride of lime be added to each five gallons of whitewash for this purpose."

"When authorized to appraise animals condemned for glanders the agent should remember that the limit allowed in such case is Sixty Dollars ($60.00). This is all that can be paid for obscure, chronic cases of glanders where no physical symptoms exist in cases where this amount does not exceed two-thirds of the actual value of the animal. In cases of open glanders where the symptoms are well marked the appraisement should be very low.

"Nothing should be paid for cases where the symptoms are so pronounced that an average horseman or a qualified veterinarian could make a positive diagnosis of the disease without laboratory assistance."

READING THE ENVELOPES.

They Tell More Than the Name and Address to the Postman.

Envelopes often tell me more about a man's financial standing than could the best "private inquiry agency." You can't "swank" a postman. And when I deliver on a certain day every month an official envelope with the relief stamp of a furniture firm on the back of it I know pretty well that the envelope contains the receipt for an installment on the furniture. When that envelope fails to turn up I keep an eye open for the other signs of impending bankruptcy.

An envelope with a crease down the middle has obviously been inclosed in another envelope. This tells me the handwriting of the householder and the kind of stationery he uses. When I deliver one of these day after day at the same house I know that the occupant is out of work and is answering advertisements. But when the envelopes stop coming I am left to wonder whether the applicant has been successful—or can afford no more stamps.

Sometimes there is tragedy in envelopes. There was a young fellow who used to stare down at me from behind the window curtain—so anxious to see what I'd got in my hand that he wouldn't wait till I'd pulled the bell. I soon tumbled to his job, for by nearly every post there would be a long envelope creased down the middle, showing it was a return. A writer he was.—Pearson's Weekly.

MAGNETIC CLEOPATRA.

Her Manner, Rather Than Her Beauty, Was Her Chief Charm.

The only authentic portrait of Cleopatra that is known to archaeologists is a bust which appears on a series of coins. It is on the reverse and bears the inscription in Greek, "Queen Cleopatra, the Divine, the Younger," while on the obverse is a portrait of "Antony, Dictator For the Third Time Triumvir."

The workmanship of the coin is far from good, and this accounts in some measure for the undeniably plain appearance of the queen. Yet the likeness, as far as the features go, is a true one, for the other coins of the same series, though of a different type, give her the same features, an aquiline nose, a strong chin, a long neck and narrow shoulders.

The fact is that her beauty was not so remarkable as one would think from the spell she cast over Caesar and Antony. Plutarch, for instance, tells us "that her beauty in itself was by no means incomparable nor calculated to amaze those who saw her," but adds that the magnetic charm of her manner, the gracefulness of her movements, the persuasiveness of her conversation and her figure were most attractive.

CHICKENS COME HOME TO ROOST

There's a very old saying—
Of course it is true—
That roosters come home,
And old hens do, too,
Just as soon as 'tis bedtime,
Wherever they roam.
They cackle and hustle
For the old roost at home.They hike from the roadside,
They run from the hill,
They come from the barnyard,
When whippoorwill's trill.
You don't have to call them
Nor give them a boost,
For chickens, you know,
Always come home to roost.And this, too, is true
Of a cutting word said,
Of lies that are told
About living or dead.
They may peep soon
Or in years to come,
Like the wandering chickens,
They always come home.And there is that action
So unjust, so mean,
It may seem well hidden,
It may seem unseen.
But nevertheless,
Like the chickens that roam,
That evil hundredfold
Will return home.

A MONOLITHIC INCUBATOR HOUSE.

The old ad of running incubators in the cellar amid the aroma of cabbages, turnips and taters and risking a fire is not so popular as it once was. There are few poultrymen who raise a considerable number of fowls who do not have a special incubator house. This is generally of iron, tile blocks or concrete. Concrete is most popular. It is presentable, indestructible. It is easily made and in the long run is most economical.Mixing concrete was once a secret, but there are now many expert workers everywhere, and a building can be so called because it is all in one piece.

The foundation and walls are eight inches thick, and three feet deep, and the forms for the walls are made of two inch plank. The mixture is composed of one part cement, two of sharp sand and three of clean gravel, and the finishing coat is equal parts cement and sand. The form for the roof is made of 2 by 4's close together and is propped up on the inside, the concrete being carried out over the walls to complete the roof, and when the roof is dry the forms and props are removed.
The floor is of same mixture and is four inches thick, the rough coat being three inches and the finish one inch.
Before erecting a monolithic concrete house it is wise to study the location well, as it is of a permanent nature and can only be removed in fragments.

DON'TS.

Don't expect business to boom by absent treatment. You can't run a poultry plant by wireless nor make profit galore while you loaf at the store.Don't prophesy your neighbor's failure when he goes into turkeys because you fell down. A little light on your methods may show him how not to do it.Don't think it's waste of time to prepare and arrange market products in the most presentable style. People buy such things to eat, and they want them neat and sweet.Don't keep eggs where flies turkey trot. "Swat the fly!" is the national cry.Don't keep a menagerie. Some fellows must dabble in every breed that comes along. Result, a little of everything and not much of anything.Don't get stuck on an extreme open front unless you see some other fellow succeed with it in zero weather. It may work in California, but not with Single Comb Leghorns in Pennsylvania.

INCUBATION INFORMATION.

While testing, if an egg is cracked, patch it with black court plaster unless the break is on the large end, and about the nineteenth day wet and gently remove plaster. Our picture shows chick and cracked shell from which it came.If uncertain as to any eggs mark and set them in the front row of the egg tray, and another test in a few days will show whether they are developing or dead, and after testing bunch the good eggs with slits in the middle of the tray.When an incubator tank springs a leak, chop poured into it will often plug the hole, but if the tank must be removed to solder, the eggs may be kept

HATCHED FROM CRACKED EGG.

warm by covering them with a woolen cloth dipped in hot water and wrung out.If caught at moving time with an incubator full of eggs don't get scared, especially if it's a hot water machine.
Place eggs in warm lined baskets and cover well. On arrival at destination fill tank with boiling water and reset.
We have kept eggs from machine an hour and had an 85 per cent hatch.Remember hatching eggs are affected by the air and the germs are weakened or killed not only by lamp fumes and odors from bad eggs and decaying vegetables, but also by tobacco smoke and also by those nasty, deadly fishery fumes that kill so many foolish humans. When chicks stick in shell, it is generally a case of weak germs, too low or too high temperature. When the dry egg membrane binds the chicks open the incubator door slightly and send a warm spray of water from an atomizer over them and watch the chicks come tumbling out.The handiest and safest light for testing is an electric light or a flashlight. Carrying oil lamps about is dangerous, and it is difficult to read an incubator thermometer by their faint ray. An electric flashlight hits the thermometer fair and you don't need to stare and strain your eyes.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

The early bird catches the worm, the early worm catches the sucker, and likewise the early hen man catches the egg. Biddy should have an early breakfast, as she generally lays in the morning and wants the rest of the day for cackling, fixing her wardrobe, dusting, sunning, scratching, feeding her egg machine, henpecking and flirting with her numerous affinities.With a corn crop of 3,169,137,000 bushels the big duck plants where so much is used should have easier sailing than in recent seasons, when corn was so high.The bureau of animal husbandry, Washington, declares that one-third of the $45,000,000 loss in farm eggs is due to blood rings and urges the farmer to produce infertile eggs, the quality egg for market. It recommends the following rules: (1) Keep the nests clean and provide one nest for every four hens; (2) gather eggs twice daily; (3)
keep eggs in a cool, dry room or cellar;
(4) market the eggs at least twice a week; (5) sell, kill or confine all male birds as soon as the hatching season is over.A child of Mrs. John Trausemann, Clarion, Pa., stooped to pick up an egg in the chicken yard, when a rooster spurred the boy in the neck and cut the jugular vein. His mother held the vein, and the doctor got there in time to save him. There is no telling what a high spirited rooster will do. We have Wyandotte cockbirds that have yet to meet the bulldog they can't lick.It's a foolish fellow who still hangs to the idea that testing incubator eggs has no effect on the hatch. We have known one bad egg to scent the whole room where an incubator was set, and when thrown from a window the egg went off like a shot. Such a rot soon poisons the air in an incubator and weakens or kills the embryos in the eggs.Notwithstanding the farmers of this country produced $9,500,000,000 in crops last year, we have some people and state legislatures that begrudge them any appropriations made for farm and crop improvement. This country has a billion dollar poultry product, mostly from the farm, and yet there are a number of states that do not appropriate a red cent for poultry culture.Care for shipping eggs, etc., by parcel post should be of minimum weight and of maximum security for protecting their contents. Cartons are already on the market, and where the producer has a number of customers in the same city the cartons may be turned and used again.

Cessna

April 20—What might have been a serious accident happened to Harry Watkins, a huckster of Alum Bank. Mr. Watkins gathers his produce in and around Cessna on Monday. About 1 o'clock Monday afternoon he was driving along the railroad at the Cessna passing siding.At this point the public road runs parallel with the railroad for about 100 yards. Mr. Watkins' horses had just stepped on the crossing when extra train No. 977 came up behind him without blowing the whistle or ringing the bell. The rain was pouring down upon the wagon cover, which kept him from hearing even he rattle of the wheels, and had it not been for the lead horse making a leap in the air, Mr. Watkins probably would never have known what it hit him. The writer was an eye witness and so close was the call that when the horses plunged in the air, he tender of the engine, which was unning backwards, hid them from view. Mr. Watkins says that by the eader making the plunge in the air e threw himself against the other horse which turned both horses and agon sidewise to the track and the engine passed them by a margin of one or two feet. What is so peculiar about the several accidents that have happened on the new division is he fact that all loss of life and nearly all stock killed has been done by an engineer.

The May Woman's Home Companion

The May Woman's Home Companion, continuing its fight for "Better Babies," contains a report of a "Better Babies" show recently held in Denver at which babies were judged for their physical condition—just like livestock—rather than for their beauty. The Companion offered two $100 prizes—one to the best city baby and one to the best rural baby. The contest was a great success. The movement for "Better Babies" is now wide-spread. It looks as if the Nation's children would receive as much attention as live stock and crops—and that is saying a good deal!

Other interesting articles in the May Woman's Home Companion are "The Mental Law of Habit," by Ralph Waldo Trine; "Delightful Vacations at Little Cost," contributed by readers; "How We Built Our House," by Ruth Marshall; "Girls Who Have Earned Money," contributed by readers, and "Helps for the Spring Moving," by Jean McCaslin.

A new serial story entitled "The Heart's Country" is begun by Mary Heaton Vorse. It is a story of a girl's heart, and presents the spiritual and emotional experiences of a young woman. Other fiction is contributed by Georgia Wood Pangborn, Alice Brown, Zona Gale, Justus Miles Forman and David Lloyd.

Rev. J. T. Fleegal

Rev. J. T. Fleegal, a prominent minister in the East Pennsylvania Eldership of the Churches of God, died suddenly at his home, near Harrisburg, on Sunday, April 20. Rev. Fleegal was the son of Rev. Simon Fleegal, a former pastor of the Saxton charge. His son was an official member of the church at Saxton and since entering the ministry has served a number of important charges. He was a member of the Walnut Grove Campmeeting Association and has taken an active part in the management of the campmeeting. His brother, John Fleegal, who survives him, lives at Saxton.

Closing Services

The Church of God at Saxton held closing services last Sunday. Saturday afternoon the pastor, Rev. F. W. McGuire, baptized four persons in the Raystown Branch. Sunday morning there was a large attendance at the Sunday School and preaching service. After the morning services, three additional deacons were elected. They were Tilden Weaver, Albert Donelson and R. L. Luckenson. At 2:30 p. m. the closing preaching service was held. Three selections were rendered by the male quartet. Many were grieved that the building is to be torn down but rejoiced that another will take its place soon. The furniture has been moved to Weaver's store room, near the depot, where the first service of Sunday School will be held next Sunday at 9:30 a. m.

Sermon on Socialism

FOUND AFTER HALF CENTURY

Remains of Confederate Soldier Covered Only by Leaf Mold.

Mute testimony to one of the many tragedies of the Battle of Gettysburg was found recently in the wild mountain region eight miles west of town, when the body of a Confederate soldier, with much of his equipment, was discovered under almost a foot of leaf mold, the accumulation of half a century.

The find was made by Clarence A. Wills, while surveying a tract of land seldom traversed, save by hunters. He was first attracted to it when he stepped on the end of the barrel of the old musket. Digging away the leaves, he found the hammer and lock and the trade-mark showing the English-made gun, which was much used in the Confederate army.

A belt buckle, part of a canteen, several dozen Confederate minie balls and other equipment were found upon further search, and finally, a shoe was discovered. All were close together between two huge rocks, and would possibly never have been discovered had not the surveyor's line chanced to run over the spot. All the wooden and cloth portions had long since decayed, and the body of the man to whom they belonged had long since decomposed where it fell. A flattened bullet bore testimony to the manner in which he met his death.

The two large rocks at which the find was made are on an eminence which commands a view for 20 miles or more, and overlooks the route of Lee's retreat after the battle. A large rearguard followed the Confederate army, which is known to have been scattered over the territory where the find was made.

Kilpatrick's Union Cavalry pursued over the same ground, and the theory held by some Gettysburg historians is that the Confederate skirmisher was standing on one of the rocks when struck by a Union bullet.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Importance of Inoculation

Failure successfully to inoculate leguminous crops is not only important because it limits the yield, but because it affects the entire rotation.

Successful inoculation of soy beans, for instance, means that after the crop is taken off the ground contains more nitrogen than before planting; lack of inoculation means that the nitrogen used has been taken from the soil and the soil left that much poorer.

The same thing is true of all the legumes, field peas, cowpeas, clover, alfalfa, vetch, beans, etc.

Inoculation means more roots to make humus, better mechanical condition of the soil, richer feeds and the addition to the soil supply of nitrogen without added expense.

Particular reference is made at this time to the soy bean, because in 1912 a good many failures in inoculation were reported.

It has now been found that bacteria sometimes, from whatever cause is not yet known, have lost the power of fastening on the roots of their proper plants.

To make certain that the pure (liquid) cultures sent out this year have the power to fasten on the roots, and properly to do their work of feeding the plant and storing nitrogen, actual tests are being made of several cultures; and the liquid sent out for use will contain bacteria which, in actual planting tests, have shown extra vigor and power to do the work required of them.

It may, therefore, be expected that the inoculation of soy beans this year will make a high record of successes. And, in view of the importance of inoculation, it is suggested that all persons who intend to plant soy beans in 1913 apply early for cultures.

I will have them on hand during the planting season. Soy beans for grain, for hay or for crop work cost about $1 for enough to seed an acre. For further information as to procuring seed, methods of planting, etc., drop me a postal card at Schellsburg.

One thing more in connection with soy beans: We planted too late last year as a rule. It is safe to plant soy beans at least as early as corn, and probably earlier, particularly the black seeded varieties of soy beans.

Assistant Agriculturist.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson V.—Second Quarter, For May 4, 1913.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xl, 9-23. Memory Verses, 14, 15—Golden Text, Job xxxii, 8—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Today's chapter suggests the dreams of Scripture and shows how God uses even a dream as a link in His chain of providences. He warned Abimelech and Laban in a dream, revealed Himself to Jacob in dreams; also spoke to Pharaoh and Nebuchadnezzar in dreams (Gen. xx, 3, 6; xxviii, 12; xxxi, 10, 11, 24; xli, 1, 7; Dan. ii, 1). Gideon also and Solomon heard God in a dream (Judg. vii, 13; 1 Kings iii, 5, 15). In connection with the birth and infancy of Jesus there were several communications by dreams, and Pilate's wife suffered in a dream because of Him at the end of His ministry. We cannot but think of Job xxxiii, 14-17, where we read of God speaking in a dream, in a vision of the night when deep sleep falleth upon men, in slumberings upon the bed that He may withdraw man from his purpose and hide pride from man.

We think also of Num. xii, 6-8, where He said that while He might talk to others in a vision and in a dream, He would speak to Moses, His servant, mouth to mouth; therefore it is written of Moses, "There arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face" (Deut. xxxiv, 10).

While there are no degrees in salvation and all who are truly redeemed are equally safe by virtue of the great atonement, there are great differences in the intimacy of the redeemed with Him. I suppose that no two righteous men could be farther apart in this matter than Abram and Lot, and not many exceed Joseph in his intimacy with God, but think of what it cost him! And just there is our difficulty. Many are glad to rejoice in their personal salvation, but few comparatively are willing to humble themselves to walk with God as He desires they should.

In that sense "many are called, but few are chosen." It means so much to deny self, be always delivered unto death, but in no other way can the life of Christ be manifest in these mortal bodies (11 Cor. iv, 10, 11).

One would scarcely believe that the offense of Pharaoh's chief butler and baker could possibly have anything to do with the working out of God's plan for Joseph and that the wrath of man could thus be overruled, but it is a weighty saying, "Surely the wrath of man shall praise thee" (Ps. lxxvi, 10). Why should Joseph care whether these men were sad or otherwise? Had he not enough troubles of his own? But see the compassion of Christ, who could take some hours on the resurrection afternoon to walk with and comfort two sad men. It sounds odd to hear Joseph say to these men concerning their dreams: "Do not interpretations belong to God? Tell me, I pray you" (verses 6-8).

If he had said, "Tell God, who only can interpret." It would seem all right. But it was all right, for Joseph knew God and represented God, and God was with him. As he was able to interpret the dreams of these men he must have been able to understand the dreams that God gave to him, and was, as suggested in a previous lesson, no doubt sustained by the future which they revealed to him. Yet he felt the time long, and the wrong which he was enduring, for bear him as he says so pitifully: "Indeed, I was stolen away . . . And here also have I done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon. Think on me when it shall be well with thee, and shew kindness. I pray thee, unto me and make mention of me unto Pharaoh and bring me out of this house" (verses 14, 15). What a record in verse 23 "Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgot him." Some one has said that such people are not all called "butler."

There is a record in Eccl. ix, 15, of a poor wise man, who by his wisdom delivered a city, yet no man remembered that same poor man. What shall we say of Him, who, though He was rich, for our sakes became poor and humbled Himself unto death for us that we, through His poverty, might be rich, and yet who of us remembers Him in any way as we should?

Miss Habershon's typical suggestions from this chapter are in reference to Jesus being bound and led away. His hands and feet pierced, two malefactors crucified with Him a message of life to the one only (Matt. xxvii, 2; Ps. xxii, 16; Luke xxiii, 32, 43). Joseph said: "Wherefore look ye so sadly? Think on me, show kindness unto me, make mention of me, and he served them (Luke xxii, 27; xxiv, 17; 1 Cor. xi, 24; Matt. xxv, 10, 13).

We must not forget the being numbered with transgressors (Isa. liii, 12; Luke xxi, 37). It must have hurt, I suppose badly to be accused of the very thing he scorned to do and no doubt the report was circulated in Potiphar's household and elsewhere and believed in many, and the model young man held up to ridicule. Think of the Lord Jesus ridiculed as a glutton, a wine bibber, a companion of sinners, possessed by the devil, crucified as an evildoer, scoffed at as He suffered. But God raised Him from the dead and gave Him glory.

Butterflies That Bathe

Dear Editor:—Some time ago I wrote a piece for your paper about the pranks of birds, this time I will write about butterflies.

It is commonly thought that a butterfly dreads the water, as much as a fine lady dreads rain; but evidently this is not true in some countries, especially Australia. The case of an Australian butterfly deliberately entering the water to take a bath is recorded by M. G. Lyell, Jr. He saw it alight close to the water into which it backed until the whole of the body, and the lower part of the hind legs were under water, the two fore legs only retaining their hold on the dry earth. After remaining in this position for about half a minute, it flew away, apparently very much refreshed. Mr. Lyell says: "During the morning I noticed a number of butterflies doing the same prank. In one instance no less than four were to be seen in a space not more than three feet square, and to make sure I was not deceived, I captured several as they rose from the water, and found in each case the body and lower edge of the hind wings quite wet. While in the water the fluttering of the wings, so noticeable at other times, was suspended, and so intent were the butterflies in the enjoyment of the cold bath that they could hardly move, even when actually touched by the net. Apparently the heat of the water drove them down to the water, as immediately upon emerging they flew up again to the hillside. Butterflies are often seen apparently sucking in the moisture around the edge of the pools, but they have never before been seen actually to enter the water."

After the bath they start their journey to the flowers and sip the delicate sweetness that is so essential to life. It has been noticed that when the wings of butterflies are touched that there is a flour-like substance gathers on the finger tips. This is as useful to the butterflies as the cuticle is to the human being. Did any of the readers ever catch a large yellow butterfly and examine it with a strong microscope? Just notice how the delicate parts are placed together and how the legs are joined to the body. Also closely observe the ribs in the wings and how the tubes and canals that carry the food that help to keep the wings in repair. Did you ever notice the proboscis or coiled like "trunk" of the butterfly? Did you see how this trunk uncoiled when the butterfly was about to sip the sweets of the flowers and how the proboscis was inserted to the very depth of the flower?

Yours truly,
Ralph Kinzey.

Helping Nephew

Not long ago there died in Albany, N. Y., an old woman who, for years, had been the object of charity. Nevertheless, the old lady possessed sufficient means, at her death, to warrant her making a will. For about nine years before she passed away, this old lady had been the recipient of a pint of milk and a loaf of bread sent to her daily by a wealthy woman of the town. When the will came to probate it was discovered that the maker thereof had bequeathed her daily allowance of milk and bread to her nephew.—May Lippincott's.

HECKERMAN LETTER

"Dad" Meets Several Former Bedford Boys on Eastern Trip.
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 28.
While walking along in Pottsville a few days ago with my mind full of the sayings, beratings, etc., of a certain go slow and go easy lady clerk in the most fashionable millinery store in Bedford because of my letter about closing the stores at six, I heard some one say, "howdy Mr. Heckerman," and there stood with outstretched hand as fine a specimen of manhood as one seldom sees—a man born and reared in Pleasant Valley. One whose father passed to the great beyond when this man was a wee child. If the mother still lives, how proud she must be of this son. Today he is the professor of the High School of Pottsville. Now guess who he is. We had a very pleasant chat of a few moments and it was then 9 o'clock.

About 1 p. m. the same day, I was crossing the street in Saint Claire, when some one said: "There goes a man from my home town." Of course, I looked, when a young man came forward and said, "I am sure glad to see you." I looked him over, up and down, and acknowledged that I did not recognize him, when all of a sudden I saw Brose Brightbill sticking out of his eye. Yes, I was right, for here stood Clay Brightbill, a son of your townsman. He handles the ticking machine in a tower for the P. R. R. near St. Claire and has done so for six long years. Here was another specimen of man. I tell you it did me lots of good to see these two men in the same day. Two such fine specimens coming from the best stock in the world—Bedford County stock.

Here is a little tale on Clay. A lady saw me talking to him when I had occasion to ask her where the buyer of the store was, said: "I saw you out there talking to a man of our town." "Yes, I had not seen Clay for years. Is he popular here?" "Oh, yes; and he is engaged to one of our best ladies, Miss May Silcox. Last year he gave her the ring and last Christmas a piano." Thus you see he has been saving his money.

The day I met these two men I had a heavy heart, for early in the morning I had been asked by another Bedford boy, now a man, to get him a bed. I looked at this fine appearing man and he saw in my eyes the question and answered it. "I left Bedford a week ago. I got into bad company and have lost all. I have had no sleep for two nights." I told the hotel man to give him a bed and charge it to me. The young man got up at 5 in the evening and I knew he must be hungry. As he had no cash and my pile very low, I said, "Come and get your supper." He ate a hearty meal and thanked me. I said to him, "Oh, my boy, what sorrow this would be to your parents." "Yes," said he. Here was one of very many of Bedford boys whom I meet and who have given way to drink. You have no idea how sad it made me. I saw this one first and then when I met the two others the next day it drove the sadness from my heart and thought, is there any thing that makes us parents feel so good as to have good reports of our children and know that they are doing what is right?

Last Sunday I went to the Reformed Church here. I think that the service was a genuine jubilee service. The pastor, Rev. Walick, baptized about thirty and confirmed almost a hundred. Very many of these were grown persons, heads of families and in quite a number of cases father, mother, son and daughter were confirmed. Yes, I think I saw father, mother, sons and daughters, baptized and confirmed. 'Twas a very solemn occasion. Quite a number were reinstated also, and think the good minister was overjoyed. Rev. Walick has been preaching here two or three years. He is very popular with his members. The last time I was in this church Rev. Levan was the minister. Let me see, that must have been fifteen years ago.

I have been very busy since I wrote you; visited eighteen towns last week and had business in each one. While coming from Mahanoy City to Hazleton we had a cave in and of course all were scared. The engineer felt the earth give way and he pulled the throttle and by so doing yanked his train over the sinking place. This country is full of hollows where the bottom had been taken out and then the props not being sufficient the top would sink.

My, how it rains today.

Yours truly,
M. P. Heckerman.

How to Make and Use Bordeaux Mixture

A prominent fruit grower in Dauphin County, Pa., who lacked experience and sought knowledge, wrote to Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, asking for directions for making and applying Bordeaux mixture, as he wished to kill the scale.

The following reply gives information of general value concerning the methods of preparing and using this important fungicide:

"The correct formula for Bordeaux mixture is made by using bluestone and lime in water. The average strong formula calls for about four pounds of lime and three pounds of bluestone in fifty gallons of water. This is the one that is used for spraying apples and other plants of that degree of hardness. The strong formula calls for about six pounds of lime and five of bluestone in fifty gallons of water, and is sometimes used for spraying potatoes, although I prefer the 4-3-50 for the potatoes.

"Each of these is too strong to use on the foliage of stone fruits, and for that reason a still more dilute formula is recommended for the more delicate plants. On them I should use not more than three pounds of lime and one pound of bluestone in fifty gallons of water.

"The bluestone should be dissolved in water and the lime slaked in another vessel, and then water added and stirred. Then the two should be put together in the spray tank after some water has been put into the same. The best plan is to dissolve one pound of bluestone for each gallon of water in any kind of vessel excepting metal, and keep it in a concentrated solution in this way. Then when you wish to use it dip out one gallon of the strong bluestone solution for each pound of the material that you wish to use. Slake your lime and keep it under water in the form of a paste, and when you wish to use it three times as much of this wet lime paste may be taken as you would of the fresh dry lime. Both ingredients will keep that way as long as you wish, and you can put them together at the time of using them without either one losing its valuable qualities. Stir the liquid in the spray tank while you are putting in the bluestone and lime. I generally make the lime into a thick white wash like cream and strain this into the spray tank until it is nearly full, and then pour in the bluestone solution, stirring it at the time.

"It should be remembered that Bordeaux mixture is not for insects of any kind. It is a fungicide and is used only to prevent plant diseases such as smuts, mildews, rusts, rots, leaf blotches and other fungi. Certain plant diseases like blight, peach yellows, etc., are not prevented by it. It is not used to kill insects and will not be useful in destroying the scale, as you say you wish to do. It should be applied before the plant diseases come and will not remedy them afterward. If used too strong it is liable to take off the foliage or even the fruit from the trees, and frequently will burn holes in the leaves, but if used at the right strength it keeps the plants healthy, strong and vigorous and helps to produce more and larger and better fruit which stays longer on the trees and keeps longer after gathered. If used too dilute it is not so efficient.

"To make an insecticide for chewing insects like the Codling-moth, caterpillars, etc., you should add a poison to the Bordeaux mixture. Use two pounds of arsenate of lead in fifty gallons of Bordeaux mixture. You will find this will bring the desired results, as you have a combined fungicide and insecticide. You can add Paris green to the Bordeaux mixture if you wish, using it at the same rate as though you were adding it to water, which, in the average, is about one-half pound to fifty gallons, but the arsenate of lead is preferred to the Paris green for many reasons and has the desirable results with none of the undesirable.

"Dilute lime-sulphur solution is rapidly taking the place of the Bordeaux mixture as a fungicide, especially on the stone fruits and pome fruits, although on grapes and potatoes the Bordeaux mixture is still showing greater value for the prevention of rot, blight, etc., than any other fungicide that has yet been used.

"For scale insects I recommend spraying with the lime-sulphur solution."

May Scribner's

The May number of Scribner's Magazine, with its continuation of John Galsworthy's "The Dark Flower (The Love Life of a Man)," Mrs. Wharton's "The Custom of the Country," and its short stories, is notably strong in its fiction. Mr. Galsworthy's story has a universal appeal, and it gives early promise of being the most popular story he has ever written. Mrs. Wharton's presentation of certain aspects of American social life in its verity to type and analysis of character is one of her most remarkable stories.

The May American Magazine
A cynic once said that if he ever confessed he would confess in 400,000 words. Then nobody would take the time to read his confession, and his sins would go undiscovered. The Money Trust investigation was not, of course, the confession of anybody's sins, but it ran to fully 400,000 words. Busy people could not possibly afford the time to read it all. It remained for some great national journalist to study the whole matter, digest it, and present the essential points in 5,000 or 6,000 words. This is precisely what Ida M. Tarbell has done in the May American Magazine. Her article is one of great interest and great value.

When my Ford car wears out, I want another of same make. The first year it went 6,000 miles, last year 9,000 and so far this winter has gone 1,000, being on road every month of winter, making 16,000 miles in all. I have used only three sets of tire in running this distance. I thought, judging from other cars, that I would need another car this spring but this one is running good and strong. It has many thousand miles in it yet, and is good for the season.

Yours truly,
E. L. SMITH, M. D.
